

Scavenger hunts are a fun addition to a visit-Use them to experience the museum in different ways.

Let's observe!
Your 5 senses are touching, smelling, hearing, seeing and tasting.
To stay safe, we'll not taste anything in the museum.

As you explore the museum, communicate what you are experiencing while using touch, smell, sound, and sight.

Use your eyes to find something brightly colored.   Use your eyes to find something shaped like a triangle.	Use your ears to find something loud.  Use your ears to find something quiet.  Use your ears to find something musical.
Use your fingers to find something soft.  Use your fingers to find something bumpy.  Use your fingers to find something smooth.	Use your nose to find something clean.    Use your nose to find something stinky.

Answers can vary, and you might have a different answer the next time you visit!

Teachers—after your visit, have your students share responses and understand how others experience the museum. Try making a graph to track your answers.
